

Service Chiefs Stand Ready For New Year

New Cabinet Includes Eight With Former Military Service; Navy Takes The Lead

EIGHT of the 10 new Cabinet members named by President-elect John F. Kennedy have served with the Armed Forces. Three served with the Navy, two with the Army, two with the Air Force and one with the Marine Corps.

Both President-elect Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson are WWII Navy officers.

Here is the breakdown on the Cabinet appointees:

Secretary of State—Dean Rusk, 51—Army Colonel.

Secretary of the Treasury—Clarence Douglas Dillon, 51—Navy Lieutenant Commander.

Secretary of Defense—Robert Strange McNamara, 44—Air Force Lt. Colonel.

Secretary of Agriculture—Orville Lothrop Freeman, 42—USMC Major.

Postmaster General—J. Edward Day, 46—Navy Lieutenant.

Secretary of Interior—Stewart Lee Udall, 40—Air Force enlisted.

Attorney General—Robert F. Kennedy, 35—Navy enlisted.

Secretary of Labor—Arthur J. Goldberg, 52—Army Major.

According to their biographies, neither Luther Hartwell Hodges (62), nor Abraham A. Ribicoff (50), who have been designated Secretary of Commerce and Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, respectively, has had military service.

SENATOR STENNIS ORDERS STUDY:

Campus Group Will Explore Military Retirement Pay, Policies

THE Senate Armed Services Committee has assigned its sweeping study of the military retirement system to the University of Michigan, and extended the target date for completion of the project until "late next spring."

Senator John C. Stennis (D-Miss) said the study will embrace the "tremendous" future increase of retirement costs, possibility of a contributory system, "appropriate method" for increasing the pay of those on the retired rolls, early

President-Elect Kennedy Is Told National Security Council Requires Overhaul; Senate Report Urges That Work Of Top-Level Planning Group Be "Humanized"

SENATOR Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) has called on President-elect Kennedy to "undertake a major overhaul of the machinery of the National Security Council."

Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on National Policy Machinery, Senator Jackson released a staff study 20 December which said that the present NSC organization "appears to be only marginally involved in helping resolve many of the most important problems which affect the future course of national security policy."

The study states: "The Council seems to have only a peripheral or pro forma concern with such matters as the key decisions on the size and composition of the total national security budget, the strength and makeup of the Armed Services, the scale and scope of many major agency programs in such fields as foreign economic policy and atomic energy, the translation of policy goals into concrete plans and programs through the budgetary process, and many critical operational decisions with great long-term policy consequences."

The staff study describes and evaluates the working of the National Security Council, and what is called the "NSC system." This system, consisting mainly of the Planning Board and the Operations Coordinating Board, is intended to support the activities of the Council.

Senator Jackson said he agrees with the study's finding that the present NSC system has diminished the "real worth" of the Council as an intimate advisory body to the President and that the NSC process should be "de-institutionalized."

The staff study said the target of the NSC should be to "insure that the perspectives of the Secretaries of State and Defense are brought to bear on an ordering of national priorities at the target-setting stage of the annual budget preparation."

Statutory members of the Council, in addition to these two Cabinet officers, are the President, the Vice President and the Director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization. Statutory advisors are the Director of Central Intelligence and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The staff study questions whether the OCDM Director should be continued on the Council and broadly hints that it might be desirable to replace this official with the Chairman, or a representative of, the Council for Economic Advisors.

Here are some of the conclusions of the staff study:

- The real worth of the Council to a President lies in being an accustomed forum where he and a small number of his top advisers can gain that intellectual intimacy and mutual understanding on which true coordination depends.

Viewed thus, the Council is a place where the President can receive from his department and agency heads a full exposition of policy alternatives available to him, and, in turn, give them clear-cut guidance for action.

- The effectiveness of the Council in this primary role has been diminished

Accrual Pay Plan Changed

THE Budget Bureau has drafted a compromise accrual flight pay plan as a substitute for the Defense Department's proposal.

Under the BoB plan, Service officers taken off rated status to meet ceilings on the number of rated military officers would be paid 95% of their regular flight pay the first year after being removed from flying status.

Each year thereafter their flight pay would be reduced by another 5% of the original amount.

Flight pay would stop completely after an officer has been paid under the ac-cruel pay plan as many years as he had previously held rated status.

Pentagon officials say that although the plan could apply to rated officers who will be taken off flight status effective 1 January 1961 to meet rated ceilings imposed by Congress, none will

Only 6000 Family Members Can Go Overseas Between February - June

THE Department of Defense has told the Services only 6,000 family members will be allowed to travel overseas with military sponsors from February through June 1961. (DoD Statement, Page 12.)

This figure does not include families who have port calls for January. Most of them will go overseas as scheduled.

During the first six months of 1961, between 67,000 and 77,000 dependents will return to the U. S.

Following DoD approval of Service plans for the reduction of families overseas, the Air Force prepared and dispatched implementing orders to major commands 20 December. The text of this message is published on Page 17.

Also on 20 December the Army held a hurriedly-called press conference in the Pentagon, but was unable to reveal

Army Chooses 671 For Leavenworth Regular And Parallel Courses; Total Includes 21 L/C's, 195 Majors, And 455 Captains

THE Army this week released the names of 17 lieutenant colonels, 183 majors and 441 captains selected for the 1961-62 Regular Course at the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. This compares with the 1960-61 class of 12 lieutenant colonels, 239 majors, and 390 captains.

The Army also announced additional school selections for 1961-62 at the Leavenworth level. This brought the total selections to 21 lieutenant colonels, 195 majors and 445 captains.

Where no rank is given, the officer is a captain; an asterisk (*) indicates rank of major; and a dagger (†) indicates rank of lieutenant colonel.

BoB Changes Accrual Pay

benefit from the plan.

Only the Air Force was forced to remove officers from flying status to meet the ceilings, the Defense Department said, and in all cases the officers so removed were eliminated for qualitative reasons. This means that they lacked further flying potential and would have been removed regardless of the ceilings.

The only officers to benefit from the plan will be those removed for "quantitative" reasons. These are officers who show no lack of rated potential, but who must be removed solely to meet the new ceilings.

An Air Force Flight Status Selection Board which convened in October suspended 728 officers from flying status for "qualitative reasons."

In addition, 1183 Air Force officers with over 20 years rated service will be excused from meeting proficiency flying requirements, but will continue to collect full flight pay. General Thomas D. White, Air Force CofS, is in this latter group.

The minimum amount of rated service needed to become eligible for the new accrual flying pay plan is reported to be 10 years.

The previous Defense Department proposal specified that officers removed from flight status for purely quantitative reasons after 10 but less than 20 years' rated service would receive 5% of their flight pay for every year of their rated service.

Both Defense and Budget officials hope that a final decision on the plan will be made in time to submit it to Congress early in the next session.

How satellites can give us low cost
emergency telephone service

Beyond their immediate military necessity, our present rocket and missile programs promise many vital peacetime benefits to us all...

Well past the drawing board stage are plans to use satellites as an emergency stand-by system to relay phone calls around the world. Your call would be beamed to a satellite, then bounced back to a receiving station on Earth. Cost is estimated at a fraction of what must be spent to install and maintain cables or radio relay towers.

While satellite telephone service is still in the future, Thor—the space booster that can put its components into orbit—is thoroughly proved. Built by Douglas, Thor has performed perfectly in more than 86% of its space, re-entry and tactical firings. In the course of more than 100 flights it has launched 18 successful U.S. man-moons, including the communications satellites Courier 1B and Echo I.

Thor is another product of the imagination and experience accumulated by Douglas in its 20 years of missile development.

Launched by the Douglas-built Thor IRBM, satellites like this would relay telephone messages anywhere in the world without costly cables or towers.

Seven Army Aviators Complete Course At USAF Flight Test Pilot School

Seven Army pilots have become the first members of their Service to be graduated from the USAF Experimental Flight Test Pilot School at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Completing the eight-month course were: Maj. John C. Geary, 39; Captains Paul R. Curry, 32; John A. Johnston, 29; Lavern R. Riesterer, 36; Emil E. Kluever, 36, and Warrant Officers Joseph C. Watts, 28, and Emery E. Nelson, 38.

Col. David B. Parker, R&D Director for the Army's Office of the Chief of Transportation, delivered the main address at graduation ceremonies 16 December and presented diplomas to members of the exclusive group.

The school, staffed by academic and flying instructors of the Air Force Flight Test Center, is one of only five of its kind in the Free World. Equivalent to the last two years of an engineering degree, the curriculum includes some 230 hours of classroom instruction, 350 hours of data reduction and report writing and 130 hours of flying.

The Army students received essentially the same highly technical course given to Air Force students, with additional emphasis placed on rotary wing aircraft. During the course, each student became qualified in jet trainer aircraft—placing them among the dozen or so jet-qualified pilots in the entire Army.

Maj. Richard C. Lathrop, School Commandant and possessor of a Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering, said that the exacting job of testing modern aircraft demands that the test pilot be more than a skillful flyer. "They stand midway between the men who build the aircraft and those who fly them. They must know the jobs of both," Maj. Lathrop said. "The modern test pilot is in reality a pilot-engineer."

Winners of the coveted awards for best academic, flying and all-around achievements as chosen by the faculty were announced by Major Lathrop during the graduation ceremonies. The Empire Award (academic) went to Capt. Paul Curry; the Ekeren Award (flying proficiency), Capt. John "Al" Johnston; Honts Trophy (combined flying and academic performance), Capt. Emil Kluever. The students selected CWO Joe Watts as recipient of the Prop Wash Award as the most popular member of the class.

Captains Johnston, Nelson and Kluever will remain at the ARDC desert site with the Army Aviation Test Office. Following completion of Command & General Staff School, Major Geary will return to Edwards also. Captain Riesterer and Mr. Watts are being assigned to Ft. Rucker, Ala., while Captain Curry will be assigned to Ft. Eustis, Va.

Col. Kaiser Named To Missile Control

Maj. Gen. August Schomburg has named Col. William F. Kaiser as Chief of the Army Ordnance Missile Command Control Office at Huntsville, Ala.

He replaces Lt. Col. E. M. Graham, who will go to an Army school in January.

Colonel Kaiser who has been serving as Chief of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency Control Office for the past two years, was graduated from Purdue University in 1935 with a degree in electrical engineering. He received his Master's degree from the University of Chicago.

Colonel and Mrs. Kaiser are the parents of a son, James W. They live at 49 Ripley Drive, Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

(The following is the text of President Eisenhower's Christmas message to American service personnel around the world.)

THIS is my last Christmas message to the members of the Armed Forces as your Commander in Chief.

For most of my adult life, I celebrated the Christmas season in uniform—in war and peace, on military assignments at home and overseas. Invariably each Christmas-tide awakens many memories of those years of service friends and comrades, and it lifts up my hopes for the future.

I deeply believe in the Christmas message of "peace on earth, good will toward men." This is the highest goal of mankind. It requires our finest efforts. It promises the greatest reward. Moreover, the peace of the world is the absolute necessity of our time.

But as I remember the Christmas story, it is not simply the birth of a child and the singing of shepherds and the coming of the Wise Men. The story also includes a cruel king, a pitiful flight of refugees and a tragic slaughter of innocent children. So with the joy of that first Christmas we cannot forget the perils of that time—or the perils of our time.

We are also living in an age of cruel and aggressive leaders. To preserve our homes and liberties against them we must stand firm. Whenever need requires, we must make personal sacrifices on our own part—and on the part of our families.

You are already doing this. The members of our Armed Forces, stationed at home and overseas, are among the most generous and most effective defenders of peace. I am the spokesman of your fellow-Americans as I say, all of us are grateful to you.

Mrs. Eisenhower joins me in sending our thanks and Christmas greetings to you—with best wishes for a Happy New Year.

God bless you all.

Early And Wide Publicity For Bolté Report

The recommendations of the Bolté Committee concerning officer personnel legislation for all the Services are scheduled to be turned over to the Secretary of Defense on 5 January. THE JOURNAL has been advised that it will be some time, perhaps months, before the Department can complete its studies and give final approval to the specific legislative changes it will submit to Congress.

In order that the Department may receive the benefit of the widest Service reaction on these proposals, it should make public the Bolté Report as soon as it is received. In this way, the basic recommendations would reach officers of all grades, no matter where they are stationed, in time for them to study it and make known their personnel views.

Such a procedure would be vastly more satisfactory, and beneficial to morale, than if the Department's final recommendations to Congress should be the first word to reach the officer corps. The latter course could lead to dissatisfaction and would confuse members of Congress by the spate of letters it inevitably would generate.

Will We Freeze Progress In Manned Interceptors?

With the restoration of the program for the development and production of the Mach 3 B-70 bomber, albeit with a year's delay, we would hope that consideration is being given to the development of an advanced long-range interceptor as a follow-on of the promising F-108 which was killed in 1959 just before the B-70 cut-back.

Virtually all Air Force leaders see a need for manned aircraft in their inventory for many years to come. It was a recognition of this need which led to the restoration of the B-70 program. The same thinking should apply to development of an advanced interceptor.

Air Defense Command officials have stated repeatedly their need for continued progress in the field of manned aircraft. With the cancellation of the F-108 there is nothing now under development for the ADC beyond those now in production.

This is an area to which the incoming administration of the Defense Department must give close and careful attention. Certainly, this nation should not commit itself to a policy of freezing progress in this vital field.

Will New Administration Ease Gold Order?

It is not surprising that President-Elect Kennedy and none of his staff have made any statement concerning the present administration's order placing the brunt of our gold dollar savings program on the shoulders of personnel of the Armed Forces. Even though this order has been so timed as not to come into full effect until the new administration has taken office, one would hardly expect Mr. Kennedy to endorse or condemn it until the responsibility is his.

Yet, in view of the thoroughness and efficiency with which Mr. Kennedy is preparing for the assumption of his high office, it would be presumptuous to assume that the problem is being neglected. Indeed, it is highly probable that his staff has made a thorough analysis of the situation and that a course of action either has been decided upon or is before Defense Secretary-Designate McNamara for further study or concurrence.

In light of the strong stand of Representative Carl Vinson, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, that the entire burden should not be borne by Service personnel, we would look either for a modification of the restriction upon Service families or for a broadening of the base to prevent them from being the only ones to make "gold dollar" sacrifices.

Readers' Views

View On Retired Officers Assn.

■ The news and editorial in your issue of 3 December relative to the "insurgent" action at a recent convention of the Retired Officers Association seems to provide a definite note of optimism with regard to that organization. Their bylaws provision (Art. VIII) which in practical effect limits national officers to retired Regulars has long kept many of us out of that otherwise promising organization, as also has the limited horizon of effective interests. The contemplated broadening not only of representation but of outlook will be welcomed by many retired officers.

Reverting to the subject of the recomputation of retired pay, mentioned in your editorial, it might be well to bear in mind that it was the Reserve Officers Association which initiated, drafted and caused the introduction into the 85th Congress of the first move to end the discrimination contained in the 1958 Pay Act. As a Legislative Representative of the Reserve Officers Association at that time, and Chairman of its Committee on Retired Reserves, I myself drafted the bill (S. 4207 and H. R. 13848) and secured the cooperation in its introduction of my good friends, Senator Henry M. Jackson and Representative Thor C. Tollefson of my home state, plus Senators Barrett, Goldwater and Thurmond, the latter a former President of the Reserve Officers Association. The bill was introduced in the Senate on 31 July 1958 and in the House on 21 August 1958. While it is practically immaterial who does what so long as we get this injustice corrected, it is as well to note that prompt and direct action to that end was actually initiated by the Reserve Officers Association, on behalf of its many thousands of retired Reserve component officers.

With the cooperation of all groups, and having in mind the pledged support of both the outgoing and incoming National Administrations, and your own unflagging editorial aid, there is ground for confidence that the 87th Congress will at long last correct this injustice.

AF Chaplain Chief

■ The chaplain referred to in the letter 3 December from Captain Thomas L. Curtis, U. S. Marine Corps, is the former Chief of Air Force Chaplains Charles I. Carpenter, who retired from the Air Force effective 30 November 1960.

Chaplain Carpenter was the first Chief of Air Force Chaplains and served in that capacity with the rank and pay of Major General from August 1948 to August 1958. At that time, he resumed his permanent grade of Colonel and was assigned as Chaplain at the United States Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., where he served until his retirement on 30 November of this year.

As will be noted from the above, Chaplain Carpenter's advancement on the retired list was to the grade of Major General in which he served on the active list for 10 years.

Gen. Eisenhower In NATO Command; Army On Cuba Alert; Presidio General Hospital Is Named

10 Years Ago—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower . . . has been appointed Supreme Commander of the united North Atlantic armed forces to defend Western Europe.

50 Years Ago—That troops of the United States are in readiness to Cuba to maintain peace to protect American and other foreign interests is denied at the War Department. . . . The Department officials are utterly at a loss to know where the wild story which was published in a New York paper, to the effect that they are keeping in special touch with Cuban affairs, originated.

97 Years Ago—The new General Hospital recently established at the Presidio of San Francisco, has been named the "Hammond General Hospital," in honor of Surgeon General Hammond, USA.

Armor Officers Will Go To Career Course Earlier; Assignment Chief Outlines Duty-School Pattern

BEGINNING next summer, the Army will send young Armor officers to the branch career course at Ft. Knox, Ky., between the third and eighth years of service, compared with the fifth to 12th years at present.

This is reported by Brig. Gen. Frank S. Henry, Chief of the Armor Officer Assignment Division.

He said that in the next three or four classes at Knox, most of the officers will have at least five years service, but he said that attendance at the Career Course will be accelerated for most officers.

This will mean earlier opportunities for other schooling.

General Henry, USMA '33, stressed the importance of initial troop duty. "Any effort, during this period, to divert a young officer into other assignments should be avoided," he said.

Except for Army aviators, Armor officers are not allowed to specialize until completion of the branch Career Course. After this, officers face an array of assignment possibilities. Some enter various specialist fields and others pursue graduate work, primarily in the physical sciences, under the Combat Arms Civil Schooling Program.

General Henry said the Armor branch desired that each officer have an opportunity to show his ability to command a company-size unit and serve as a principal staff officer at battalion, regimental or combat command level before attending Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

The Army gave these details concerning Armor assignments:

Following graduation from C&GSC, officers are considered for a broad range of assignments. Certain qualified officers are selected for graduate study in the social and physical sciences, again under the Combat Arms Civil Schooling Program.

Consideration for War College level schooling, to the extent possible, hinges on an officer's ability to command a battalion-size unit and handle an important staff assignment at Army or higher level.

Current figures for Armor officers show that 55% have bachelor degrees. Many others, in search of a degree, pursue courses under the Army's General Educational Development Program. Under this program, officers within a year of completion of requirements for a bachelor's degree can apply for attendance at a civilian college or university on a full-time basis.

Because of the large number of applicants for the educational program, Armor selects officers on a competitive basis to fill its limited quota. Overall military record, future potential, and amount of service remaining are all considered in making selections.

Throughout the service of Armor career officers, the Armor Officer Division aims ahead four or five years in individual assignments. Officers usually are notified of their next duty station at least four months prior to completion of present duty.

Assignments of colonels are made by General Henry or his deputy, Col. Ralph L. Dickie. Company and field grade officers, other than colonels, are assigned by staff members but are subject to the division chief's approval. Requirements for the Strategic Army Command are paramount.

Screening of records is a never-ending process and career development is watched closely. Officer preference cards play an important role in assignments. Personal desires of the individual officer are met as much as possible consistent with proper career development and the needs of the service.

"In that connection," General Henry noted, "most officers are well aware of the type duty needed to keep their career well-balanced, and they come up with sound requests. Of course, not all desires can be met, either with respect to type of duty or area."

Some officers want repetitive assignments to the detriment of their career development. Others want to serve their Army careers only in specific localities. Fortunately, these individuals are few in number. California and Florida are the two areas most requested.

An important area of work for General Henry's nine-man staff are the letters from Armor officers in the field. Personal problems, requests for information, questions on future duty, are just a few of the subjects. Answers are direct, frank and prompt. More important, according to assignment personnel, are personal visits to the assignment division, some 100 a month.

These visits give assignment officers a closer insight into the needs, desires, and background of visitors and counseling takes on a new aspect. Oftentimes, facts bearing on an officer's career are brought out which have a decided effect on his future assignments—facts revealed in the personal interchange between assignment officer and visitor.

All officers do not come in, however, and assignment personnel make as many field trips as possible. During these visits, General Henry and members of his staff carry along as much information as possible on the officers in the areas visited. Trips to service schools are included.

"In all its activities, the principal aim of the Armor Officer Division is to keep the individual officer informed and insure that all assignments are beneficial to both the individual and the Army," it was stated.

A3J Vigilante Sets 91,450 Foot Record; Prepares For Fleet Attack Role With Navy

A 91,450.8 foot world jet altitude record for jet aircraft has been claimed for the North American Aviation A3J Vigilante attack plane.

The record flight, carrying a 1,000 kilogram payload, was made 13 December at Edwards AFB, Calif., in a Vigilante piloted by Cdr. Leroy A. Heath, USN, Bombardier-Navigator on the flight was Lt. Henry L. Monroe, USN.

Both are assigned to the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.

The previous record of 67,096 feet in the same class was set 13 July 1959 by Russian pilot Vladimir Smirnov, flying a twin-jet RV monoplane over Bykovo Aerodrome.

The Vigilante, designed and produced for the Navy by North American's Columbus, Ohio, Division, is undergoing evaluation before being assigned to the fleet.

It is an all-weather attack plane built for carrier operations and capable of delivering both nuclear and conventional weapons. The internal bomb load ejects straight aft from the tail of the aircraft. The Vigilante is capable of speeds in excess of Mach II, has a wingspan of 50 feet and a length of 50 feet.

For setting the new record, Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke awarded Commander Heath the Distinguished Flying Cross. Lieutenant Monroe received the Air Medal.

"T" FORCE DEPUTY:

Sixth Army Info Chief Will Retire

Col. Harold C. Lyon, Sixth Army Information Officer, will retire 31 December at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Prior to this assignment in 1958, he served as Chief, Troop Information Division, in the office of the Army Chief of Information.

A Deputy Commander, "T" Force, 12th Army Group, 1944-45, he participated in the liberation and intelligence exploitation of Paris, Luxembourg and several large German cities.

The Colonel has two sons, Lt. Harold C. Lyon, Jr., USMA '58, assigned to the 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., and Robert, 13.

Upon retirement, Colonel Lyon and family will reside in California.

MISSILE FLAGSHIP

The cruiser Springfield (CLG-7) has become the first guided missile flagship of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, which has about 50 ships, including three carriers.

The Terrier-equipped Springfield relieved the heavy cruiser Des Moines (CA-134) and flies the flag of VADM. George W. Anderson, Jr., Sixth Fleet Commander.

Des Moines has been the flagship for a record consecutive 83 months.

Col. Clayman Chosen Airborne Corps Deputy

XVIII Airborne Corps Headquarters at Ft. Bragg, N. C., reports that Col. Donald C. Clayman, G-3, has been advanced to Deputy CofS for Operations. He succeeds Col. Steve A. Chappuis, assigned to Korea.

Col. Gus S. Peters became G-3 and turned over command of 82d Airborne Division's 1st Airborne Battle Group, 503d Infantry, to Col. Henry J. Muller, Jr.

Assuming Colonel Muller's position as Commander of Headquarters Special Troops was Col. Herbert V. Mansfield, former Deputy Corps G-3.

Lt. Col. Dumas A. Boardman, Jr., who had served as 82d Airborne G-4, succeeded Maj. Daniel W. Hickey as Corps Secretary of the General Staff. Major Hickey left to attend the Army Language School, Presidio of Monterey, Calif., and a future assignment in Paris.

Lt. Col. Roger Whiting, who has just returned from an assignment with the Army Mission in Paraguay took over as Corps Information Officer from Maj. Rolland A. Dessert, who becomes Executive Officer of the Ft. Bragg Separation Center.

Col. Stinson Gets NATO Net Post

Col. Ira F. Stinson, USAF, former Chief of the Electronics Division for the JCS Joint Staff, has assumed duty as Assistant CofS for Communications for NATO's Sixth Allied Tactical Air Force at Izmir, Turkey.

He will have staff responsibility for all NATO air force communications facilities in Turkey and Greece.

Colonel Stinson was accompanied to Izmir by his family. Mrs. Stinson is the former Eleanor Crumlish of Buffalo, N. Y. They have three children.

B/G Conoley To Europe

Brig. Gen. Odell M. Conoley, Assistant Commander of the 2d Marine Division, will assume duties as the Deputy J-3 on the staff of the U. S. Commander in Chief, Europe. General Conoley will leave Camp Lejeune sometime next Spring.

M/G Brandt Of ATC Will Retire 31 Jan.

Maj. Gen. Carl A. Brandt, Assistant to the ATC Commander, will retire 31 January at Randolph AFB, Tex.

A USMA '30 graduate, General Brandt's service includes command of the Air Proving Ground at Eglin AFB, Fla.; command of the Technical Training Air Force and, most recently, ATC Vice Commander.

A command pilot, General Brandt has logged more than 7,800 flying hours and has piloted more than 100 different types of aircraft. He is credited with being the first military aviator to fly the B-24, B-26, B-29 and B-32.

After retirement, General Brandt will reside in San Antonio, and Shalimar, Fla.

M/G C. A. Brandt

RAdm. O'Donnell Is CO At Guantanamo

RAdm. Edward J. O'Donnell, USN, has assumed command of the U. S. Naval Base, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, relieving Capt. Carl W. Schoenweiss, USN, as Commander Naval Base.

Capt. Schoenweiss has served as interim commander since the detachment of RAdm. Frank W. Fenno, Jr., USN, who was hospitalized.

Observing the change of command was RAdm. Allen Smith, Jr., USN, Commander, Tenth Naval District, and also Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier. Admiral Smith's headquarters are in Puerto Rico, but he has been flying his flag at Guantanamo Bay in recent weeks.

Admiral O'Donnell had been serving as Director, Far East Region, Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs) until his assignment to Guantanamo Bay.

Captain Schoenweiss will remain in Guantanamo Bay and continue in his post as Commanding Officer of the Naval Air Station.

MEMO--

SECDEF-DESIGNATE McNAMARA WASTED NO TIME in seeking out the two Congressional leaders with whom he will be working most closely in his new job. He telephoned Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee on Sunday 18 December—the same day Mr. Vinson returned to Washington—and arranged for a 20 December meeting in the Congressman's office. He had conferred previously with Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee in Winder, Ga.

CHAIRMAN VINSON FORECAST that Mr. McNamara, who served with the Air Force as a lieutenant colonel in WWII, could become the Nation's best Secretary of Defense. It was obvious that Mr. Vinson, who entered Congress 19 months before the new SecDef was born, was impressed with the cautious attitude Mr. McNamara has taken toward the major Defense reorganization proposed in the Symington Report (full text The Journal, 10 December).

DURING THE McNAMARA MEETING, Chairman Vinson, a stern opponent of the single chief of staff concept proposed by the Symington group, took the opportunity to remind the new Defense leader that President-elect Kennedy has said that any move to reorganize the Pentagon "will have to wait" until Mr. McNamara has studied the present organizational structure. It is noteworthy that Chairman Vinson invited Representative Paul J. Kilday (Tex), second-ranking Democrat on the Committee, to participate in the 40-minute get-together. Mr. Kilday also is opposed to a single chief of staff.

CNO ARLEIGH BURKE, who has consistently warned against a "military Solomon," called at Chairman Vinson's office the day before the McNamara meeting. His conference with the powerful House Chairman undoubtedly centered on a discussion of the controversial Symington proposals.

AFTER McNAMARA'S MEETING WITH VINSON, the Defense Secretary-designate told newsmen there would be no immediate overhaul of the Pentagon. He said Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force will be appointed, as well as other posts recommended for elimination by the Symington group. The 44-year-old Ford Motor Co. President said he first wants to study the need for change. Chairman Vinson told The Journal he was "very favorably impressed" by Mr. McNamara.

A HAPPY HOLIDAY NOTE was struck for the Director of the Army Chorus. Capt. Samuel Loboda, who has led the Chorus since its activation in 1956, has been promoted to major.

THE RETIRED OFFICERS ASSOCIATION'S special committee to study proposals to widen representation on the Board of Directors (The Journal, 3 December) will meet in Washington, D. C., 6 January, according to a call issued by its chairman, newly elected First Vice President Lt. Gen. Homer L. Litzenberg, USMC-Ret. Although no funds have been provided for travel, committee members hope there will be representation from various parts of the nation.

A SPECIAL STUDY of methods of achieving broader geographical representation of the Association's board has been made by the organization's staff. It will be presented at the meeting by the President, Lt. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, USAF-Ret. The Association has more than 46,000 members and a large number of other organizations affiliated with it, many of which are seeking a voice in the governing body.

DEPUTY SECDEF-DESIGNATE Roswell L. Gilpatric, 56, a native of Brooklyn, brings to the Pentagon post experience as an Air Force civilian official, and as a member of both the Rockefeller and Symington Committee on Defense Organization. He served as Air Force Assistant Secretary (Materiel) from 28 May 1951 to 29 October 1951 when he became Under Secretary, holding this No. 2 spot until 1 February 1953. His new boss, Secretary McNamara, attended Harvard Graduate School; Deputy Secretary Gilpatric is a graduate of rival Yale.

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia owes a big debt of gratitude to Air Force S/Sgt. Kenneth W. Morris. The story has been revealed of how on 15 December at Roberts Field, Liberia, when the Emperor after 5 days, still was unable to establish communications with his revolt-torn country, Sergeant Morris was able to get through. A member of the 1254th Special Air Missions Wing of MATS at Washington National Airport, Sergeant Morris was the member of a crew flying a Congressional group on an African visit. He succeeded in establishing radio contact with Andrews AFB, Md., which then transmitted via Europe, to Asmara, Eritrea. Emperor Selassie was able to talk with General Abeyababa in Asmara and received word that it was safe for him to return to Ethiopia and save his empire.

THE DISTAFF FOUNDATION Board of Directors has ruled that widows of Air Force officers who served 20 years in the Regular Army prior to 1947 will be eligible for admission to Army Distaff Hall. This is the residence for 300 widows being built at 6200 Nebraska Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C.

THE AF BALLISTIC MISSILE DIVISION at Inglewood, Calif., reports that 15 of the 44 civil engineering officers under Brig. Gen. William E. Leonhard, AFBMD Deputy Commander, Civil Engineering, have advanced degrees, including Capt. Wallace Fluhr and 1st Lt. Valentine Zadnik, who hold doctorates. During the past year, Air Force civil engineers have seen their prestige steadily on the rise.

FRANCIS CARDINAL SPELLMAN will celebrate Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve at Thule AFB at the rim of the Polar Ice Cap. On Christmas Day, he will hold a Mass for Army personnel at Camp Tuto, Greenland, 14 miles southeast of Thule. As he does each year, Cardinal Spellman is visiting members of the U. S. Armed Forces during the Christmas-New Year period.

THE LARGEST CAMPUS IN THE WORLD is claimed by Pacific Air Forces for its university program, which extends from Hawaii to Formosa and includes degree-granting programs offered by the University of Maryland, University of the Philippines, University of Hawaii, and Sophia University in Tokyo. Current enrollments of PACAF people is 10,899, an increase of 2637 in the past year despite reductions in PACAF military strength.

NEW ARMED FORCES I&E DIRECTOR will be Brig. Gen. William O. Blandford, USA. He succeeds his West Point ('33) classmate, Brig. Gen. S. F. Giffin, USAF, who retires at the end of the year. General and Mrs. Giffin will continue to make their home in the Washington, D. C. area. General Blandford, now Assistant Commander, 4th Infantry Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash., will report to his new assignment in the Office of the Secretary of Defense in February.

SERGEANT MISSILE TRAINING for soldiers will begin on a formal basis 4 January at the Sperry Utah Engineering Laboratory in Salt Lake City when 25 students will enroll for a three-month course. They will be trained by Sperry Utah, prime industrial contractor, for duty as instructors and maintenance people for Army agencies which later will conduct classes for soldiers assigned to Sergeant units.

THE NAVY MUST WRITE new orders for scores of officers and enlisted men who had been assigned to the carrier Constellation, which was to have been commissioned in March. The $75 million blaze aboard the $275 million ship at the Brooklyn Navy Yard will delay commissioning until 1962. Prospective commanding officer, Capt. Thomas J. Walker, was already in Brooklyn. Executive officer, Cdr. Charles K. Ruiz, is at Norfolk, with a skeleton crew of 32 officers and a group of enlisted who were in training for Constellation service.

THE NAVY HAD SENT 27 officers, including Captain Walker, to Brooklyn as the advance party during the ship's outfitting. There are 116 enlisted men there, with 230 more under orders to the carrier, whose peacetime complement will be about 3,400.

WHAT WITH THE TIGHT PINCH on travel money, the Constellation assignment changes as a result of the fire are going to create additional difficulties. But the major fiscal problem, of course, will be to find the money to defray the cost of the reconstruction necessary after the fire.

ASST. SECDEF CHARLES C. FINUCANE and his staff of experts, once given a green light by the White House, moved as quickly as possible to provide guidelines to the Services regarding the "Gold Dollar Widow" directive. The Pentagon issued a statement (see Page 12) explaining new developments and, as a consequence, it was possible for the Services to follow suit. The Air Force on the next day (see Page 17), sent a detailed message to the field, and the Navy rushed completion of an AINav to advise the field.

IT HAD BEEN HOPED that the Army, one month after the President's initial order, would be in a position this week to give some specific guidance to its people. The Army is affected by the "Gold Dollar Widow" situation much more than any other Service. But although holding a press conference 20 December, the Army still was unable to answer such basic questions as who will go overseas and who will be returned after the end of January.

THE ARMY LOST in its bid to win exemption for Berlin from the overseas quotas. The question now remains as to whether the Army will drastically reduce family strength in Berlin, or maintain it at relatively the present size. There is not much doubt that the Army will make a new effort to win exemption for Berlin when the Kennedy Administration assumes office, and in this proposal, the Army will have strong support from the State Department.

IT WAS HINTED by Army officials at the Pentagon press conference that they were preparing a "key position" list to determine military members who would have first priority for family travel. This would include billets where entertainment of foreign officials is a requirement of the assignment. The Defense Department will allot to each Service a separate quota for officers assigned to MAAG's, Missions, and Attache posts.

ONE BIG REASON why the Air Force was able to move more expeditiously than the other Services in formulating its family plans was the fact that immediately after the President's order was issued, the Air Force summoned representatives of all major commands to a Pentagon meeting on 28 November. At this session, recommendations from the field were received and reviewed, and a special committee was created to work on the problem. At the meeting, USAF Headquarters officials received up-to-the minute information on the number and classification of Air Force families in the U. S. and overseas and, as a result, were able to make concrete plans and proposals to the Defense Department within a matter of days.

Retired Notes

Col. James J. Adams, USA-Ret., formerly Director, Distribution Division, Army Logistics Management Center, Ft. Lee, Va., and Mrs. Adams have sold their Petersburg, Va. home and are in the process of moving to Florida. They will reside at 410 N. Lake Lulu Drive, Winter Haven, Fla.

Col. Burton E. Miles, TC, USA, has retired after more than 20 years active Army service. Upon retirement, Colonel Miles will reside at 1605 Westover Road, Austin, Texas, with his wife, Peggy, and son, Mike.

Retirement ceremonies on Fort Benning's Chapel Field 20 Dec. honored two key officers of the Infantry School: Col. Richard W. Mabree, director of the Special Subjects Department, and Maj. Sam H. Adams, chief of the Sound Section.

Colonel and Mrs. Mabree and their two daughters plan to make their home on the West Coast.

Major and Mrs. Adams, the former Elizabeth Mercer of St. Paul, have two children, Sam H., Jr., 18, and Mary, 15.

Lt. Col. Oscar Q. Moon, first commander of the 2d U. S. Army Missile Command, retires at Fort Carson 31 Dec. A native of the Denver area, the colonel will remain in Colorado Springs at 604 Yucca Drive, a home he has owned since 1950.

Lt. Col. Loyd Tallent of 2014 Morningside Dr., Garland, Tex., deputy commander of the U. S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command, was honored with a retirement review recently staged by the Troop Command on Stilwell Field at Fort Benning.

Colonel Tallent will make his home in Garland. He is married to the former Juanita Andrews of Gladewater, Texas.

Capt. James H. Thorne, SFC John T. Thompson, and Sgt. Jasper Capps, also were honored at the retirement review.

Pakistan will be home to one of 12 retiring Army personnel at Headquarters, Fourth U. S. Army, Fort Sam Houston, but San Antonio will be the residence of eight.

Leaving for foreign shores upon retirement 31 Dec. will be Lt. Col. William Dieterich of the Fourth U. S. Army Medical Laboratory. After 20 years active Army service he will become consultant to the dean of the College of Veterinary Science and Animal Husbandry at the University of Dacca, East Pakistan.

Retiring personnel who will reside in San Antonio are:

Col. R. Beverley Caldwell, Fourth U. S. Army Chemical Officer, who will live at 475 Burr Road; Col. Lillard P. Miller, President Physical Evaluation Board, 117 Gas-Hills Drive; Lt. Col. John M.

PENTAGON REPORTS FAMILY CUT PLANS

(The following is the text of a Defense Department announcement concerning implementation of the "Gold Dollar Widow" directive).

THE Office of the Secretary of Defense on 19 December, approved the plans of the Military Departments for effecting the required reduction in the number of dependents in foreign countries.

The plans provide for an orderly phasing of the reduction and are quite similar. During January 1961 there will be a small net reduction of 2,711 in the numbers of dependents in the affected countries. Each of the Military Departments contributes to this reduction, with the Army providing the largest share, 1,600.

Beginning February 1961, there will be an increasing net reduction in numbers of dependents in foreign countries each month until June when a large reduction in numbers will take place. This follows normal rotation policy since an effort is made to make as many changes of station as possible during the summer months.

At present, it appears that no dependents will be returned involuntarily to the United States unless accompanied by their military sponsor. The net reduction being realized will be effected through return of both military sponsor and his dependents on the normal date of return, curtailment of tours of duty of some military personnel, and a limitation on the number of dependents authorized to proceed to foreign countries. The attached table provides additional details.

All United States territories and possessions are exempted from the provisions of the reduction in dependents action and, in addition, the following countries or areas were exempted on 15 December 1960:

Azores	Mexico
Canada	Okinawa
Guantanamo Naval Base	Republic of Panama

There are approximately 30,000 authorized dependents in the above countries. In Alaska and Hawaii, United States territories and possessions there are 153,104 dependents.

The total reduction in numbers of dependents in foreign countries will be approximately 215,000. This reduction will be accomplished over a period of about fifteen months at approximately the rates shown on attached table. There are now approximately 640,000 dependents of military and civilian personnel located in Alaska, Hawaii, U. S. Territories, and in Foreign Countries.

In view of the added separations which will be caused by this policy, the Department of Defense is considering several possible means of reducing such separations. Among the means being considered are shorter tours of duty for personnel not accompanied by dependents and the possibility of home leaves during an unaccompanied overseas tour. Many additional details must be resolved before plans in these fields can be completed. However, those individuals who proceed overseas without their dependents during the early part of 1961 will receive the benefits of any actions taken to alleviate hardship.

The following table gives details of plans for reduction of the number of dependents in foreign countries through June 1961 and summarizes the plans for periods beyond June 1961.

NET REDUCTION IN NUMBERS OF DEPENDENTS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES
(Round Numbers)

MONTH	ARMY	NAVY	AIR FORCE	DOD TOTAL
January '61	1,600	500	600	2,700
February	4,600	750	4,000	9,350
March	4,500	700	5,000	10,200
April	5,600	750	5,200	11,550
May	5,800	800	7,000	13,600
June	6,300	1,250	23,000*	30,550
Quarter Ending
September 30, '61	20,400	3,000	21,500	44,900
December 31, '61	16,750	3,000	21,500	41,250

*Air Force has been given authority to move a portion of the planned June return into July and August in order to alleviate the transportation problem.

Navy plans beyond June have not been completed but will be approximately this number.

Mrs. Eisenhower Is Distaff Hostess

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower officiated at the White House 13 December in a symbolic ground-breaking ceremony for Army Distaff Hall, a 300-unit residence for widows of Army officers being built at 6200 Nebraska Ave., N.W., Washington.

The White House ceremony was arranged when weather forced cancellation of the formal ground-breaking ceremonies at the Foundation's home.

Lt. General Leslie R. Groves, USA-Ret., President of the Foundation, and Mrs. Gordon Young, Chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, headed the Foundation officials who expressed to Mrs. Eisenhower appreciation for her support. General Groves presented Mrs. Eisenhower, on behalf of the Foundation, with a gold bracelet charm, and Mrs. Young presented her with a silvered Infantryman's intrenching shovel for use in the symbolic ground-breaking ceremony.

National Guard Officers Ordered To Leavenworth Associate Course

Forty Army National Guard officers will attend the Associate course at the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., 5 January to 4 May.

The course is designed to prepare officers for duty as commanders and general staff officers of combat divisions and to familiarize them with duties of the general staff at corps and Army level.

The National Guard Bureau said that priority for selection was given to officers selected or designated for promotion to colonel or higher. These officers have been designated for command positions in combat divisions and other separate major commands of the Army National Guard.

Priority was also accorded officers serving in staff positions requiring this training in order to properly perform the functions of their job. This is in line with National Guard Bureau policy which requires all officers to obtain military education appropriate to their branch and grade.

Those selected to attend are:

COLONEL—Jerome D. Niles, jr., Del.;

Max H. Specht, Tex.; Edward B. Thorpe, N. J.; and Howard S. Wilcox, Ind.;

LIEUTENANT COLONEL—Thomas C. Armstrong, Ark.; James H. Barrett, Me.; William T. Bostick, Tex.; Alfred S. Byrne, N. Y.; Melvin T. Coffin, Okla.; O. T. Dalton, jr., Mo.; Oral L. Davis, Ala.; Milford W. Delorme, Vt.; Cyril F. Gerdes, S. D.; Wilbur S. Green, Calif.; William S. Greer, Pa.; Harry C. Hagelgans, Fla.; Paul H. Jones, Ida.; Henry B. Kimmey, Md.; Howard A. McKinney, Mont.; Robert O. Marshall, N. M.; Milton H. Maurer, Nebr.; Edward H. Milburn, Ky.; Robert P. Miller, N. D.; Edmond C. Norwich, Ohio; James S. O'Brien, Minn.; Salvador M. Padilla, P. R.; Thomas F. Patin, La.; Leo W. Regan, Mass.; Fred C. Rice, Ore.; John T. Rose, Ill.; Robert W. Schroeder, Wisc.; Cecil E. Scott, N. Y.; and Arthur A. Smith, N. H.;

MAJOR—Richard D. Anderson, R. I.; David L. Britt, N. C.; Charles N. Gayle, S. C.; Rufus A. Harman, Va.; Donald K. Jacobson, Wash.; Theodore M. Robinson, Calif.; and Warren K. Wells, Mich.

Four Caribou Start Series Of Training And Troop Tests At Infantry Center

The Army's largest aircraft, the AC-1 deHavilland Caribou, has taken its place in Fort Benning's air traffic patterns in preparation for troop testing at the Infantry Center next Spring.

Four of the three-ton aircraft have been assigned to Lawson Army Aviation Command's First Aviation Company, which is now engaged in a 12-week training program to end with a five-day Army training test designed to insure individual and unit proficiency before the 60-day troop test scheduled to begin 15 April.

The Fort Benning tests will be conducted by Caribou Test Headquarters, according to Lt. Col. Edward M. Harrell of Columbus, Ga., test executive and operations officer. They will be designed to disclose how the Caribou can be maintained under field conditions, what its capability is in support of field Army units and the most suitable organization to support the aircraft.

During the spring test every possible "combat situation" which may be reproduced will be used and the twinengined Caribou will be literally "wrung out" in the gruelling research session, Col. Harrell said.

The First Aviation Company, to which the Caribou are assigned, is commanded by Maj. Charles M. Honour, and will serve as test unit.

ARDC-ATC Liaison To Speed Weapons' Use

An office to provide liaison between Air Research and Development Command and Air Training Command has been established at Randolph AFB, Tex.

This new office provides liaison between ARDC and ATC on personnel subsystem policies to insure that qualified personnel will be available to operate, control and maintain new hardware when it is delivered to the field for test and operation.

Maj. John F. Gardner is the ARDC Liaison Officer in charge.

NAA Space Nuclear Reactor Meets Tests

A prototype of the first nuclear reactor for outer space has successfully completed operational ground tests, Lt. Col. G. M. Anderson, USAF, of the Atomic Energy Commission, announces.

Termed the SNAP Experimental Reactor (SER), it was developed by Atomics International, a division of North American Aviation, Inc., as part of the Commission's Systems for Nuclear Auxiliary Power (SNAP) program. The one-year test program just completed has verified significant performance characteristics necessary to design the final flight reactor.

Shillelagh Missile Contract

Aeronutronic Division of Ford Motor Company, Santa Ana, Calif., has received a $3 million letter contract for continuation of R&D on the Shillelagh missile.

Senator Stennis Asks Contributory Retirement Study; Questions Present Career Policies

retirement policies, and a comparison of military retirement with the Civil Service contributory system.

Senator Stennis disclosed details of the study on 20 December. This was exactly four months after the project initially was authorized. He said a seven-member University Committee already has been formed and "has been in operation for a number of weeks." No explanation was given for the delay in announcing the selection of the study group.

Originally, Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) had expressed the hope that the study could "be completed early in 1961 and submitted for further consideration of Senator Stennis' Subcommittee at that time." Senator Leverett Saltonstall (Mass), ranking Republican on the Committee, told THE JOURNAL, in late September, he was hopeful the study could be acted upon "early in the next session."

The Military Retirement Study Committee at the University of Michigan is led by Dr. Carl Fischer, Professor of Actuarial Mathematics. A former member of the statutory Advisory Council on Social Security Financing (1957-59), he heads the University's Insurance Department, and has acted as consultant to a number of state and private retirement systems.

Another member of the committee is Dr. Paul W. McCracken, Professor of Business Conditions, who served on the Presidential Council of Economic Advisors (1956-59).

Senator Stennis said the group already has made "considerable progress" and "it is anticipated that the final report will be submitted to the Committee on Armed Services by late next Spring."

Here is the text of Senator Stennis' remarks concerning the frame of reference within which the Fischer Committee is conducting the study:

"The scope of the Committee's study and analysis will include, although it is not necessarily limited to, the following aspects of military retired pay:

"A. The tremendous future increase in costs of military retired pay

"If there are no increases in military retired pay, the present annual cost of $775 million will increase to $1 billion annually by July 1, 1964; $2 billion by 1972; $3.4 billion by 1983. If there is a 6% cost-of-living increase every four years, this annual rate will rise to $2.4 billion annually by 1972 and $4.8 billion by 1983.

If the recomputation system for retired pay is re-enacted, and if over the next 15 years military pay increases in the same magnitude that have already been passed since the end of World War II are granted, the military retired pay costs by 1972 will be $3 billion annually and will continue to rise until the annual cost will be $7.8 billion by July 1, 1983.

"During the period from July 1, 1960 to July 1, 1983, the total anticipated costs of military retired pay under the stated conditions are as follows: (1) $47.2 billion if there are no future increases in military retired pay; (2) $58.2 billion if there is a 6% increase for those on the retired list every 4 years beginning July 1, 1962; and (3) $80.5 billion if the recomputation system is enacted and the same increases granted during this period that have already been authorized under the military pay acts since the end of World War II.

"These sums represent the total anticipated disbursements by the Federal Government for military retired pay during this period. The University study will include the implications involved in future military retired pay costs.

"B. The matter of the appropriate method for increasing retired pay subsequent to retirement

"The 1958 Military Pay Act, which was a drastic revision of the military pay structure, did not reenact the recomputation method under which retired persons recompute their retired pay on the newly enacted basic pay scales for the active forces. To have continued the recomputation system under the 1958 Act would have resulted in disproportionate increases for the retired lists. Large increases would have been authorized in the upper, commissioned grades while, at the same time, there would have been little or no increase for those retired in the lower commissioned and enlisted grades.

"Instead, the 1958 legislation adopted a cost-of-living system, thereby assuring an increase for all retired persons. That Act granted a 6% cost-of-living increase for all retired persons, except those retired in 3 and 4-star rank, who received a 16% and 26% increase, respectively.

"Subsequent to the 1958 Act, legislation that would reenact the recomputation system for certain retired persons was referred to the Senate Committee on Armed Services. This legislation provides that those retired prior to June 1, 1958, under current pay laws could increase their retired pay by recomputing on the basis of the higher 1958 pay scales. The effect of the legislation would be to provide for substantial average annual increases for those retired in the higher commissioned ranks, ranging from $526 for lieutenant colonels to

AF Tells "Gold Dollar Widow" Details; Stress Placed On Preventing Hardships

THE Air Force, in a message to major commanders, has revealed details of how it will implement the order to reduce the number of family members overseas. Major commanders were told to implement the program "with least possible personal hardship without degrading operational readiness."

It was emphasized that efforts will be made to give families at least 60 days notice, and authority is granted for families to occupy government quarters, in certain cases, up to 60 days after departure of military sponsors.

Here is the approved Air Force plan:

(1) normal inbound (to ConUS) and modified outbound (to overseas) flow of dependents in January 1961;

(2) normal inbound flow, February through May 1961 and highly restricted outbound flow during same period;

(3) sufficient early returns in June 1961 to meet DOD goal of net reduction by end June 1961; this would require the return of 23,094 dependents plus sponsors during June 1961; however, if deemed necessary the Air Force has authority to postpone 50% or 11,500 of planned June returnees until July 1961 or postpone 25% (5,750) until July 1961 and an additional 25% until August 1961;

(4) sufficient early returns during remaining months to meet DOD goal of net dependent strength reductions on a quarterly basis by 31 March 1962;

(5) maximum outbound flow of dependents to affected overseas areas of 2,000 per month commencing July 1961. Dependent overseas strength in affected areas is to be 74,170 on and after 31 March 1962 which requires a net reduction of approximately 105,000 dependents in affected areas over the fifteen-month period.

Effective planning should begin immediately to increase inbound flow of dependents during June 1961. To meet this goal, to the maximum extent possible, curtail all July 1961 forecast inbound (to ConUS) sponsors with dependents to June 1961 and all August 1961 to July 1961. New DEROS of June and July 1961 will be established. Request you advise this headquarters no later than 1 February 1961 of number of dependents forecast in accordance with these instructions for return to ConUS in June and July 1961. Further instructions governing remainder of dependent reduction program will be issued based on updated DEROS statistics as of 1 January 1961.

Policy governing outbound flow of dependents stated in ALMAJCOM message 1414/60, 18 November 1960 and message 63171, 21 November 1960 to ZI commands only remains unchanged.

Message 1414/60 discontinued specific authority to extend military personnel accompanied by dependents beyond the normal overseas tour. This authority is reinstated as well as authority to grant waivers for humanitarian considerations, hardships and peculiarities of selected Air Force units but this authority should be exercised only in consideration of cases involving mission impairment or extreme personal hardship. Extensions and waivers should be kept to a minimum in realization of the greatly reduced number of personnel who in the future will be afforded the advantage of accompanied tours. Authority is also granted commanders to curtail tours of sponsors with dependents to the extent necessary for return to ConUS no earlier than June 1961, or earlier for sponsors for whom no replacement is required. However, in all cases where sponsors and dependents are to be returned to the ConUS prior to the normal DEROS of the sponsor, the officer and airman manning agencies in Headquarters USAF will be informed by means of appropriate reports so that necessary changes to manning data can be made.

Pending forthcoming revision to joint travel regulations, Paragraph 7009.2 will be used as the authority for the return of authorized dependents under the circumstances of dependents returning without sponsor. Paragraph 8300 may be used as authority to ship household goods. Where dependents are returned under provisions of JTR paragraph 7009.2 authority is given to prorate sponsors tour from an accompanied to unaccompanied basis except where such prorating would result in a remaining unaccompanied tour of less than seven months. In such event sponsor will agree to serve in an unaccompanied status for a minimum of seven months, which will enable this headquarters to program replacement actions on a normal manning cycle.

It is the Air Force policy that the overseas dependent reduction program be implemented with least possible personal hardship without degrading operational readiness. Wherever practicable sponsors will return to ConUS with dependents. Maximum notice, preferably 60 days, will be given all military personnel ordered overseas, particularly personnel proceeding on unaccompanied tours. Commanders are enjoined to assist in alleviating personal hardship in every way possible including permitting dependents to remain in government quarters and public housing up to 60 days after departure of military sponsor in cases where sponsor received inadequate notification of pending departure. See provisions of Paragraph 20, Section D, AFR 30-6.

Separate instructions regarding civilian personnel will be forthcoming at an early date.

Happy Star Time

LAST PLANE DELIVERED:

Defense Industries See Peace-Future In Space Work, Martin President Says

MIDDLE RIVER, MD.

WORLD disarmament would not mean the passing of such firms as The Martin Company, 100% of whose business is in the defense field, President William B. Bergen of the Baltimore firm, declared here at an Aerospace Transition Luncheon on 20 December.

"Few of us here, I think," Mr. Bergen declared, "share the popularly held belief that, if real peace should break out in the world, Martin and other stalwarts of the defense industry automatically would be out of business."

"If we have the skills and management capabilities we think we have," Mr. Bergen continued, "our company and other leaders in the defense industry could more than offset such a loss immediately with corresponding gains in the space business, and in the business of devising and producing the complicated mechanisms of global surveillance that will be vital to keeping the peace once it has been achieved."

Mr. Bergen made this statement at a luncheon which following a ceremony marking a major milestone in Martin's history—the delivery of its last conventional airplane, a P5M-2 Marlin twin-engine patrol bomber, to the Navy.

Martin, the oldest surviving member of the aircraft industry, has been building airplanes for more than 50 years and now enters exclusively on a program of space, missiles, nuclear development, and research. The P5M was the 240th of its series and ended a production career in which more than 12,000 aircraft were built and delivered.

The final P5M-2 was accepted on behalf of the Navy by RADM. W. A. Schoech, Deputy Chief of the Bureau of Naval Weapons. It was immediately prepared for delivery to the 7th Fleet in the Pacific.

Also speaking at the ceremony was RADM. C. B. Martell, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, Development, A. L. Varrieur, Martin vice president and General Manager of the Baltimore Division, G. S. Trimble, Martin vice president Advanced Programs, Floyd Thompson, Director of NASA's Langley Research Center, and Ernest R. Fink, President of the Baltimore Council of the Navy League which sponsored the luncheon.

Study Electronic Command Post

SCALE model of the "battlefield command post of the future" is viewed by Maj. Gen. F. F. Uhrhane, (center) commanding general of the U. S. Army Electronic Proving Ground, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., his aide, Capt. John W. Stillwell (left), and Gerald J. Lynch, vice president of Ford Motor Company's Defense Products Group and general manager of Ford's Aeronutronic Division, Newport Beach, Calif., during a tour of Aeronutronic's Engineering and Research Center, Newport Beach, Calif., by the military visitors.

General Uhrhane met with Mr. Lynch, vice president of Ford's Defense Products and general manager of Aeronutronic, and other Division management officials, including Dr. Ernst H. Krause, director of the Technical Staff and acting manager of the Advanced Programs Staff; Carolus A. Brown, manager of Military Systems for Computer Products Operations; Robert F. Geiger, Computer Products marketing manager; and Carl Jardine of the Marketing Staff.

The "battlefield command post of the future," known as ARTOC (Army Tactical Operations Central) puts the speed and versatility of modern electronics to work for the field commander, helping him make appropriate, timely decisions in the stepped-up tactical environment of the mid-1960's. ARTOC is being developed by Aeronutronic's Computer Products Operations for the Army Signal Corps.

Philco Computer Heads For Army Use

Philco Corporation has delivered a "Basicpac" FIELDATA computer to the Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., for acceptance tests.

Basicpac (AN/TYK/6V), designed and built by Philco's Computer Division, Willow Grove, Pa., under contract for the USASRD, is described as "a completely solid-state, economical, tactical computer of the Army's FIELDATA family of stored digital data processing devices. Of medium size, it provides high capacity data processing under forward area tactical situations."

The computer is a flexible, rugged, reliable data processing system which meets all military specifications for shelter mounted, air-transportable equipment. Basicpac can be transported and operated in an S-109 shelter mounted on a 2½ ton truck; or from fixed installations.

In order to make use of the capabilities of electronic data processing equipment, the Department of the Army Staff and the Continental Army Command have investigated many field operations which could be converted to automatic data equipment. The activities under study include: logistics, administration, intelligence, command control, and fire support.

USCONARC is studying a concept of integrated automatic data processing for the entire field army; much in the same manner as a common communications system. The Signal Corps has the responsibility for equipment development and system testing. Personnel of the Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory and the Army Electronic Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., are cooperating to develop and integrate equipment into operational systems.

Alcoa Steps Up Military Activities

Aluminum Company of America announces the appointment of Edwin H. Spuhler as development manager, aerospace and military equipment, a new position in the company's development division.

Formerly manager of the aero-space section, Mr. Spuhler now directs the activities of two sections charged with furthering the use of aluminum in aircraft, missiles, rockets, and military equipment.

Lawrence W. Mayer has been named manager of the aero-space section, concerned with aluminum applications in airframes, rotor blades, missiles, rockets, space vehicles, air cushion vehicles, propellants, and atomic energy uses. Mr. Mayer is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and joined Alcoa in 1954.

Edsel W. Johnson has been appointed manager, military equipment section, dealing with armored vehicles, special military trucks and trailers, aircraft and missile ground support equipment, ordnance, ASW (anti-submarine warfare), and the activities of the Corps of Engineers.

New Lacrosse Award To Martin Orlando

The Army announces the award of a $1,037,169 contract for components for the Lacrosse missile system to The Martin Company of Orlando, Fla. Martin is the prime contractor for Lacrosse.

The Lacrosse missile is now operational and in the hands of field units. It was developed under the technical supervision of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency, an element of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Curtiss-Wright Elects

T. R. Berner President

Election of T. Roland Berner as President of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation has been announced by the Board of Directors of the company.

Mr. Berner will continue as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Curtiss-Wright, the capacity in which he has served since 25 May, 1960. His election as President fills a post which has been vacant for the past six months.

T. R. Berner

In announcing Mr. Berner's election as President, a spokesman for the Board of Directors said: "Since he was elected Chairman and Chief Executive Officer last May, Mr. Berner has devoted himself to the realistic reorientation of the company's programs. Under his leadership, in a comparatively short time, the position of Curtiss-Wright has been strengthened in many fields and its potentials for future business have been expanded. On the basis of this performance, the Board of Directors asked Mr. Berner to assume the presidency in addition to the chairmanship of Curtiss-Wright."

Mr. Berner is also a member of the boards of General Precision Equipment Corporation and of Amerace, Inc. During World War II, he served as an officer in the Air Arm of the Navy.

UK TACAN Contract

To Hoffman Corp.

The Military Products Division of Hoffman Electronics Corporation has been awarded a contract in excess of $350,000 by the United Kingdom for TACAN Beacon Simulators, Jack Kuhner, vice president and general manager of the Division, announces.

The simulators will be used in testing and calibrating airborne TACAN navigational equipment already delivered to the British by Hoffman as part of a separate contract, Mr. Kuhner added. He also noted that a recent decision by NATO established TACAN navigation equipment as standard for military aircraft operated by all of the NATO nations.

The new UK order, Mr. Kuhner said, further increases the division's backlog, which already stands well beyond a year's normal output.

DYNASOAR AWARD TO MINNEAPOLIS-HONEYWELL; RCA WORKS ON COMMUNICATION SYSTEM

THE Air Force has signed a letter contract with the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company covering a six month development program for the guidance system to be used in the Dynasoar manned hypersonic space glider. The contract was issued by Wright Air Development Division and the AMC Aeronautical Systems Center.

Dynasoar research flights are planned for the mid-60's as a prelude to manned space systems. The delta winged glider will be boosted into space by a Martin Titan ICBM. The objective of the program will be to explore the potential of hypersonic and orbital vehicles, with particular emphasis on a study of critical aerodynamic heating.

The glider will be capable of maneuvering while in its glide back to earth and will provide the Air Force means of exploring problems of hypersonic flight. Dynasoar will make a conventional landing upon its return from orbit.

Boeing Airplane Company is the system contractor and is responsible for building the glider, integrating sub-systems and supporting the Air Force test program.

Radio Corporation of America was awarded a multi-million dollar contract for the development of a complete Dynasoar communication sub-system, it was announced by Walter G. Bain, Vice President and General Manager, Communications and Aerospace, RCA Defense Electronic Products.

The RCA Airborne Systems Division in Camden, N. J., will handle the project which will involve the development of a tracking network for Dynasoar utilizing data link communication techniques.

The time division data link is a ground-to-air UHF Digital Communication System designed for rapid and accurate transmission of command data.

MATS Will Get 16

Hercules C-130E Prop-Jets

Modernization of the Military Air Transport Service with faster, longer-range, more versatile aircraft, has begun this week with a letter contract for $5 million for 16 C-130E Hercules prop-jets awarded to the Georgia Division of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by the Air Force's Air Materiel Command.

The order for the new troop and cargo carrying aircraft is expected to total 50 aircraft over a two-year period with a total estimated program cost of $170 million.

The first C-130E is to be delivered to MATS in March, 1962, Lt. Gen. Joe W. Kelly, commander of MATS, said.

Col. Lanphier Elected

Fairbanks, Morse Head

Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, Jr., USAFR, has been elected president of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., the largest manufacturing component of Fairbanks Whitney Corporation, it is announced by David Karr, president of the parent company.

Colonel Lanphier first became associated with Fairbanks Whitney on 1 September, 1960, as vice president-planning. As president of Fairbanks, Morse, he will continue to serve concurrently as a vice president of the parent company.

Prior to his association with Fairbanks Whitney, Colonel Lanphier served almost 10 years as vice president and assistant to the president of the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation.

$12 Million Award For

Titan Communications

The Ballistic Missile Center of the Air Force Air Materiel Command has awarded five contracts totaling more than $12 million to the Stromberg-Carlson Division of General Dynamics Corporation for communication systems for Air Force Titan missile bases.

Announcement of the awards was made jointly by Maj. Gen. Thomas P. Gerrity, commander of the Air Materiel Command's Ballistic Missile Center, Inglewood, Calif., and James D. McLean, president of Stromberg-Carlson.

The contracts give Stromberg-Carlson responsibility for all communication sub-systems, integration and management. They provide for the design, development, liaison and engineering of the communications systems for Air Force Titan missile squadrons, and for the manufacture and installation of the systems at the first four Titan bases.

"Gold Dollar Widow" Order Details Told

details of its new policies affecting travel after January, when it will send approximately 3200 family members overseas, while returning 4800.

Although no official plans were released by the Navy and Marine Corps, it was learned that these Services will reduce their number of military and civilian family members overseas by approximately 800 per month through the first six months of 1961.

From January through June, there will be between 67,000 and 77,000 Service family members coming back from overseas. Less than 10,000 will go overseas during the first half of 1961.

Of all Services, only the Air Force has made definite plans to cut short the tours of families overseas in order to meet its dependent quotas. Little likelihood is seen at this time for a shortening of tours of Army people now overseas with their families.

During a press conference 20 December, Brig. Gen. Robert A. Hewitt, Army Director of Military Personnel Management, said that Army personnel on orders overseas after January must assume they will go without their families "unless told otherwise."

He said that some family members may be sent to join their sponsors at a later date, but declined to state how many or when.

"The basic premise behind the whole operation," General Hewitt said, "is to cause the least hardship and least inconvenience and still do what we have to do."

General Hewitt declined to reveal Army plans for maintaining the families of military personnel in Berlin, for reducing unaccompanied tours overseas

Army Navy Air Force Journal 19
24 Dec. 1960 (Vol. 98, P. 473)

or implementing the reduction program in specific countries.

The specifics of the Army plan, he said, are currently being worked on by the Army Staff.

Only a "relatively small number" of Army families would be authorized overseas travel after January, General Hewitt emphasized.

The Air Force in its message to all major commanders stated that while few families would be assigned overseas between February and June, approximately 2,000 family members could be sent overseas beginning in July 1961, as was reported in THE JOURNAL issue of 10 December.

Senate Orders Retired Study

$4,586 for former chiefs of staff. There would be little or no increase for those retired in the lower commissioned and enlisted grades. Also excluded from any increase would be those of any rank who were receiving retired pay under the laws in effect prior to 1949.

"The total cost of this legislation would be about $650 million, with the first year cost of about $33 million.

"C. Early retirement policy

"Many officers, including those of full rank, are being retired at an early age—many before 55—when they are at the peak of experience and mental ability. The question arises whether the interests of the military services as well as the persons concerned, are best served under this policy.

"D. Possible contributory system

"Under existing provisions of law military personnel make no contribution toward the cost of their retirement as do Federal Civil Service employees. This study will examine in all its various aspects the question of whether the military retirement system should be placed on a contributory basis.

"E. The relevance of the Civil Service System

"The study will include a comparison of the military retirement system with non-military systems, including particularly the Federal Civil Service System. The Executive Branch has estimated that the enactment of recomputation legislation for retired Civil Service personnel would result in a total additional cost of $2 billion for present Civil Service retirees alone, with $200 million the cost for the first year.

"F. Objective of the study

"As already indicated, the military retirement system for the years ahead is confronted with a number of far-reaching issues. It is therefore appropriate and necessary, both for the present and the future, to establish a sense of direction for the system, and to determine whether the present military retirement policies and provisions are best serving both the military and national interests. The basic aim of the University study in its consideration of these matters is to assist in providing information on which to determine the best and soundest military retirement system for all concerned, both for the present and the future."

...in the finest tradition of service

The traditions of serving freedom wherever it is threatened, and of rolling back the tide of tyranny wherever duty calls, have made the American flag and the American serviceman the world's most respected symbols of liberty. From the Pirates of Tripoli to the Communists of Korea, American servicemen have fought and stopped the tyrants.

We of Federal Services, our founders who were of the services and many of our staff who bore the arms of the country, hold in high regard these finest traditions of service. We aspire to serve in the same high manner—those who serve the nation.

President-Elect Kennedy Is Urged To Overhaul NSC

by the working of the NSC system. The root causes of difficulty are found in overly crowded agenda, overly elaborate and stylized procedures, excessive reliance on subordinate interdepartmental mechanisms, and the use of the NSC system for comprehensive coordinating and followthrough responsibilities it is ill suited to discharge.

Suggestions To "Humanize"

In making suggestions to "deinstitu-tionalize" and to "humanize" the NSC process, the staff study said:

- The Council exists only to serve the President. It should meet when he wishes advice on some matter, or when his chief foreign and defense policy advisers require Presidential guidance on an issue which cannot be resolved without his intervention.

- The true goal of "completed staff work" is not to spare the President the necessity of choice. It is to make his choices more meaningful by defining the essential issues which he alone must decide and by sharpening the precise positions on the opposing sides. Meetings of the Council should be regarded as vehicles for clarifying differences of view on major policy departures or new courses of action advocated by department heads or contemplated by the President himself. The aim of the discussion should be a full airing of divergent views, so that all implications of possible courses of action stand out in bold relief. Even a major issue may not belong on the Council agenda if not yet ripe for sharp and informed discussion.

Keep Meetings Small

- The Secretaries of State and Defense share the main responsibility of advising the President on national security problems. They are the key members of the Council. Whom the President invites to Council sessions will, of course, depend on the issue under discussion. However, mere "need to know," or marginal involvement with the matter at hand, should not justify attendance. Council meetings should be kept small. When the President turns for advice to his top foreign policy and defense officials, he is concerned with what they themselves think. The meetings should, therefore, be considered gatherings of principals, not staff aides. Staff attendance should be tightly controlled.

- The NSC Planning Board now tends to overshadow in importance, though not in prestige, the Council itself. However, some group akin to the present Board, playing a rather different role than it now does, can be of continuing help to the Council in the future. Such a Board would be used mainly to criticize and comment upon policy initiatives developed by the departments or stimulated by the President. It would not be used as an instrument for negotiating "agreed positions" and securing departmental concurrences.

Abolish OCB

- The case for abolishing the OCB is strong. An interdepartmental committee like the OCB has inherent limitations as an instrument for assisting with the problem of policy followthrough. Responsibility for implementation of policies cutting across departmental lines should, wherever possible, be assigned to a particular department or to a particular action officer, possibly assisted by an informal interdepartmental group.

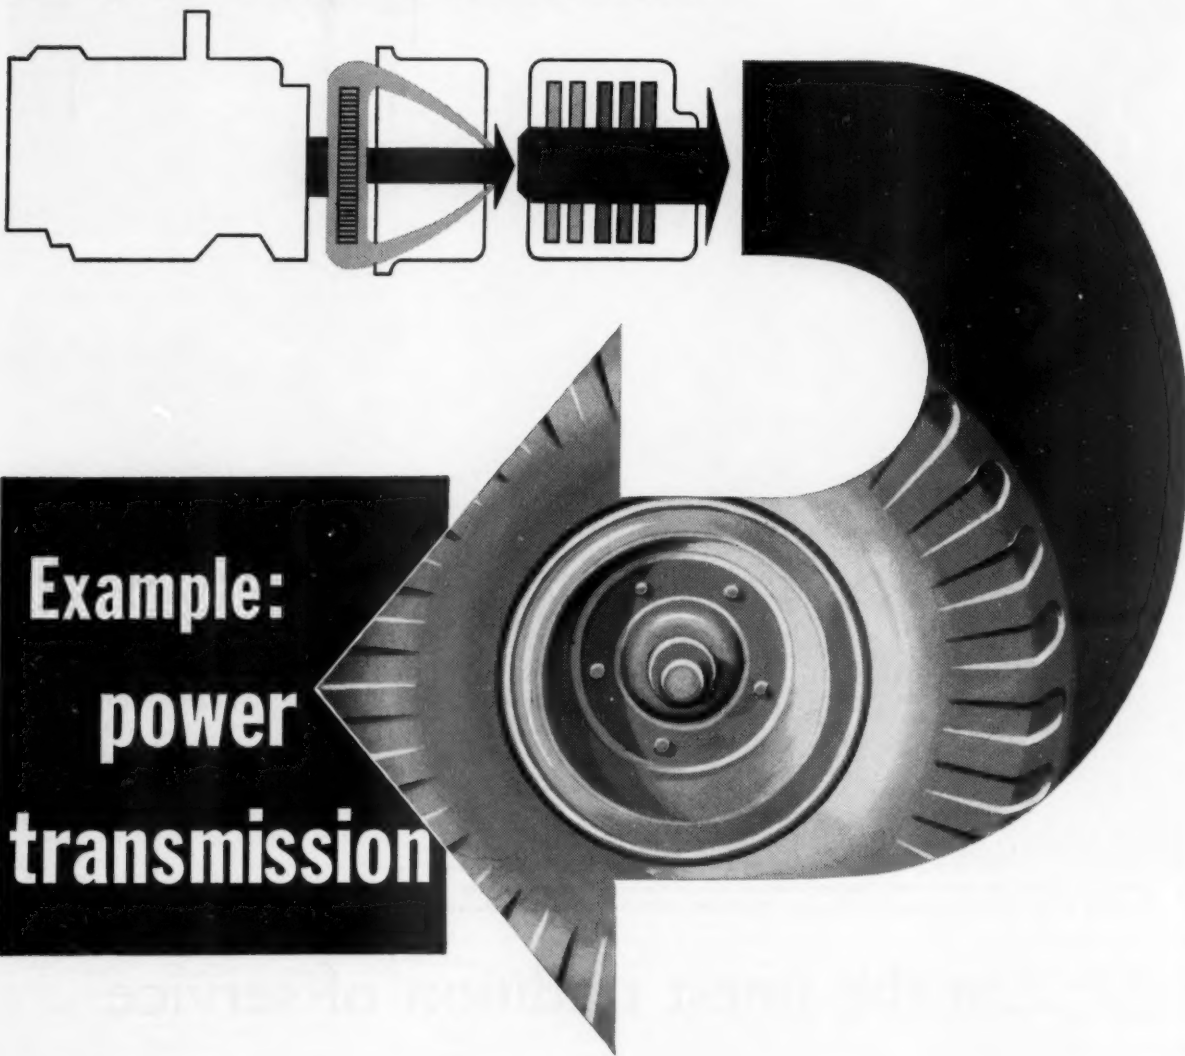

- The Council will continue to require a staff of its own, including a key official in charge. This staff should consist of a limited number of highly able aides who can help prepare the work of the Council, record its decisions, and troubleshoot on spot assignments. The NSC system now contains several staff components. These might well be more closely integrated.

Eliminate OCDM?

- The National Security Act intended that one Council member regularly bring to the NSC perspectives on our domestic economy and domestic resources. The Director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization is the present heir of that role. But the concern of the OCDM focuses upon civil defense and mobilization problems of wartime emergencies. The Council of Economic Advisers, among other agencies is now much more concerned than the OCDM with the kind of domestic perspectives relevant to the problems of a protracted conflict which stops short of a major war. The new President and the Congress may therefore wish to ask whether the Director of OCDM should have continued statutory membership on the Council.

- Today, there is often little resemblance between a policy statement emerging from the NSC and programs finally carried out by the operating departments and agencies. The actual scale and scope of these programs is determined largely by budgetary decisions made outside the Council. An attempt to use the Council for the details of resource allocation would be no more feasible than trying to use the Cabinet for this purpose. Yet the search for ways and means of relating the Council's advice more closely to the budget process must be pursued. The problem is not to make the Council manager or czar of budget preparation. Rather it is to insure that the perspectives of the Secretaries of State and Defense are brought to bear on an ordering of national priorities at the target-setting stage of the annual budget preparation. The NSC is the appropriate body for helping the President define such priorities.

Caterpillar Capability for Defense...

NEEDED: quick-shift transmission for various heavy vehicles . . . instant change of speed or direction under full load . . . resistant to shock . . . smooth, reliable performance. RESEARCHED: Transmission and gear design involving new techniques in metallurgy and hydraulics—developed after 50,000 field test hours of prototype designs under instrumented control. PRODUCED: Power Shift Transmission . . . combines direct and torque converter drive . . . split-second, finger-tip shifting . . . all condition, dependable performance.

The design and manufacture of Power Shift Transmissions, requiring tolerances closer than those in a fine watch, yet used in the heaviest equipment, typify Caterpillar's capability for defense assignments.

Single components or complete vehicles from concept to delivery! Advance research programs, backed by plant capacity and more than 50 years of manufacturing skill, permit Caterpillar to provide dependable products to meet military requirements.
